Law graduate turned comic, Felix Dexter, has become a huge hit at the Edinburgh Festival with his show called Multiple Personalities In Order. Over the years Felix has been known as a great comedy actor with a wealth of different characters in his locker. Coming off the back of his television work on "The Fast Show" and "Bellamy's People", Felix has really hit the ground running with his performances at the international comedy festival.

Over the years, success at the Edinburgh Festival for comedians has resulted in them being given their own comedy shows as TV producers use the festivals' audience responses as a way of judging how the rest of the country may react to them on TV. During his performances at the Festival, Felix has continually played sold out shows and there is now a feeling that he may finally make his mark with a TV show reward. Fingers crossed.
